The Kangaroo Island bushfires have been in the news lately. And in reading the reports, you could be forgiven for thinking that the whole island went up in flames. But in fact, most of KI is as brilliant as ever and still open for business. Many of the attractions, roads, shops, hotels, beaches, sea lions and dolphins on Australia's third largest island have been unaffected by the fires. Which means the island recently voted as the best in the Asia Pacific region is still a great place for a holiday. After what's happened, the people of KI need a bit of a break. If you do too, call 1300 655 031 or visit southaustralia.com
